TO THE WEST! TO THE WEST!

Before making your arrangements to follow the advice of the "thousands who have already gone," it would be well to consider what has been done to make the journey to your "Homes in the West" as pleasant and free from danger as human skill and foresight can accomplish.

By consolidation and construction, a road has been put into operation on the shortest possible line from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis, "the future great City of the world." This line, the has, during the past year, earned an enviable reputation by its smooth track, prompt time, sure connections, and the magnificence of its passenger equipment. Its trains are made up of new and commodious day cars, provided with the celebrated Miller coupler and platform, and the Westinghouse air-brake.

It is positively the only line running Pullman Palace Drawing Room Sleeping Cars through without change from Nashville to St. Louis. No other line pretends to offer such advantages, either in distance, time, or equipment. Why, then, journey by circuitous routes? Do not be induced to purchase tickets to St. Louis or the West by any other line, remember that is the shortest, cheapest, quickest, best and only line under one management from Nashville to St. Louis, and is from 60 to 200 miles the shortest to St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, California, Texas, and all western points. It is also the "Chicago Shortest Line," via Evansville.

You can secure the cheapest rates for yourselves and your movables on application, in person or by letter, to CHARLES McCABE, Southern Passenger Agent, near College street Depot, Nashville, Tenn., or to the undersigned.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

Monday, November 3d, 1873.

A PROCLAMATION,

By the President of the United States of America.

The approaching close of another year brings with it the occasion for renewed thanksgiving and acknowledgment to the Almighty Ruler of the Universe for the unnumbered mercies which He has bestowed upon us.

Abundant harvests have been among the rewards of industry. With local exceptions health has been among the many blessings enjoyed. Tranquility at home and peace with other nations have prevailed. Frugal industry is regaining its merited recognition and its merited rewards.

Gradually, but, under the providence of God, surely, as we trust, the nation is recovering from the lingering results of a dreadful civil strife.

For these and all the other mercies vouchsafed, it becomes us as a people to return heartfelt and grateful acknowledgments, and with our thanksgiving for blessings we may unite prayers for the cessation of local and temporary sufferings.

I, therefore, recommend that on Thursday, the twenty-seventh day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship, to make their acknowledgments to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection, and to offer to Him prayers for their continuance.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 14th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and [L.S.] of the independence of the United States the ninety-seventh.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

Freedman's Savings Bank.

We have been inclined to oppose the National Freedman's Savings Bank for a long time, upon the grounds that the money deposited should be invested and loaned out among its customers, and not sent out of the State, and thereby constantly depleting the section of country where it is located. We have been informed that the funds sent to Washington are invariably invested in U. S. Bonds, and if so we would raise no objection to the Banks, though in this city we have a Savings Bank sustained and guaranteed by our wealthiest men, and much better for our friends than one managed by strangers. But we do not know how the funds shipped to Washington are invested, and we can conceive of no greater calamity than the failure of these Banks. We do not say there is danger, for we know nothing about them, but we confess we would like to know all about them. Who can tell?

We have received an important letter, on this subject from a friend in Washington, but he has forgotten to give us his name. We never publish anonymous communications, and cannot deviate from our rule in this instance. If our correspondent will give us his name, we will still publish his letter.

Farmers vs. Merchants.

The stringency in money matters is not loosened, and it cannot be disguised that grave apprehensions are entertained that the prospect does not promise a speedy relief. Although, as yet, there is no excitement or panic, the commercial suspensions and failures are calculated to make all who have paper out to feel anxious. Confidence is the great necessity of the occasion, and this is being daily shaken by those who hitherto have enjoyed the reputation of being the fairest of all men in their business relations.

It would not be doing justice to the farmers to condemn their action without a hearing. A candid statement of their case certainly presents some merit. A producer arranges in the spring with his commission merchant to assist in making the crop. The merchant furnishes much of the supply for carrying on the work of the year, and takes a lien upon the crop to make good his disbursements. These liens are usually made to the first of November, as by that time the crops are ready to be moved. This year the price of produce is low, and the farmer says to his merchant: "It is unfair for me to sacrifice my property to the misfortunes of the times. I had no hand in bringing about a tight money market. It would place it out of my power to pay my debt to you if you sell my produce at the ruling price. My entire crop will not pay what I owe you, and thus I would be without credit to carry on my business next year. To save myself I must hold my produce till the price goes up. Then you shall have it. It will work only a temporary inconvenience to you. Your business is speculation, and you must expect in the course of it, to tide over such embarrassments as the present. You ought not to be a merchant if you cannot firmly meet a slight delay in realizing your assets. I admit the crop is yours, I cannot sell it to any one else, but I intend to put it out of your power to slaughter me, by holding on to my cotton, and preventing a sale when the market is ruinously low."

As self preservation is one of the first laws of nature, the farmers feel justified under that law in keeping from the merchants what truly belongs to them.

The reply is this: "Without adverting to the injustice of keeping a person out of possession of what belongs to him, let us see if you will be benefitted by keeping your crop out of the market. The cement of credit is confidence. By your own admission you are unable to carry on your business without credit. Your provisions you do not make, your manure you do not raise, and you must go into a market to buy. Can you go with the ready cash in your hand? Have you been able to do so, since you have been making cotton so extensively? Credit then is absolutely necessary to you, and here you are placing yourself outside of the confidence of men hereafter by a deliberate and voluntary act of your own. Suppose I take legal steps to enforce my lien. The costs will be great and you must pay them. Thus you are purchasing at a dear rate, your own destruction. As for carrying your embarrassments, it was no part of my contract, and no part of my duty.

Suppose we are able to carry your debt for a while, though I tell you, merchants employ credit much more than farmers, the time will assuredly come when you will again apply to us for the same help, to be given on the same terms, as heretofore. Do you think we can give it? If it were but a few of you, they could change their merchants, and receive the same assistance, but but when it is so general, every one of us have been imperrilled by you, and consequently dread you."

EDITORIAL BUDGET.

— The Cincinnati Enquirer, Democratic, rather snubs the brethren in New York. It says: "They celebrated our little victory in New York with one hundred guns. If they are Tammany gunners we don't care much for the compliment."

—"A native born caricaturist like Thomas Nast," says the Baltimore American, "might have saved Virginia from the folly of secession, provided, of course," and the reader will appreciate the force of the proviso, "his body had been impedrvious to bullets."

— The Louisville (Ky.,) Commercial recalls to mind a remark that the late Gen. Humphrey Marshall made in a half-jesting way one day, to the effect that he thought it wasn't worth while for the Democrats to get into power yet awhile. He wanted the Republicans to go ahead, pay the national debt, get the Treasury full, and then step out of the way, and let the Democrats have full sweep. "The fact is," he said, "we Democrats haven't had a chance at the public crib for years, and we are powerful hungry. I don't want anything done to injure the credit of the government, and I don't want to be bothered with economy and the trouble of paying debts, and so I think it would be better to wait till we won't be bothered by considerations of that kind, and can take our swing at the Treasury with unembarrassed minds."

— The appearance of Stokes is fearfully changed since his first trial. Then it used to say as plainly as words, "What! hang me? Impossible!" Now, after the verdict of the last jury, he fidgets, he turns his eyes imploringly to jurors, he looks appealingly at appearance reminds one of a high-spirited dog that has been severely whipped. He crouches, he glances furtively, he is afraid. But Stokes' physical condition is even more terribly altered. The plump, well-fed look has left him, his eyes are sunken, his collars are too big for him, and the cords of his neck start out as he looks this way and that, fatal disease. In truth, Stokes is stricken with consumption, and his long confinement in the Tombs has brought the hand of death down upon him. A year or two down South, or in Italy or France, might possibly bring back the glow to his cheek and the life to his eye; but not probably. Stokes is doomed, whether he dies on the gallows or not.

A gentle Quaker had two horses, a very good and a very poor one. When seen riding the latter, it turned out that his better-half had taken the good one. "What!" said a sneering bachelor, "how comes it that you let your wife ride the better horse?" The only reply was: "Friend, when thee be married thee'll know."

Music by Handel—that of the organ-grinder.

The Fayettville Gazette has just learned the particulars of still another distressing murder, which was perpetrated in the western part of that county, on Tuesday afternoon. A young man named — Baker, a native of Moore county, now living in Cumberland, as stiller for Jno. Blue & Bro., on the Centre Plank Road, about 19 miles from Fayettville, was killed by his "helper" about the still, a negro named Tom Monroe, or Tom McLauchlin. The circumstances, as we have been informed of them, are briefly as follows: Baker on going to work about the still that day hung his coat containing his pocket-book and money near at hand. On quitting work, and putting on his coat, he missed the money, and charged the negro Tom Monroe with taking it, whereupon Monroe seized a hand-spike near, and struck Baker over the head, crashing his skull and laying bare the entire brain. Baker is doubtless dead ere this, as the physician in attendance declared it impossible for him to live many hours.

The negro fled to the woods, and at last accounts had not been captured. The entire neighborhood is aroused in pursuit, and parties of men are scouring the county in every direction. Many of these men know every foot of the ground, and every path through the forest; they are noted deer hunters accustomed to a hunter's life, and the chances for the escape of the murderer are very few.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

By His Excellency, the Governor of North Carolina.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Raleigh, October 22d, 1873.

WHEREAS, The people of North Carolina have been abundantly blessed during the past year, and the earth hath yielded bounteously of all the products of its soil so that the garners of the husbandman are filled to overflowing; and the industrious mechanic has realized a rich reward for his labor, and every class of our population prospered in all laudable enterprises; and WHEREAS, above all, fraternal feelings and good will have in a great measure been restored in our midst, and no plague, pestilence or famine, has visited our State: Now, therefore, as it becomes us, a grateful people, to render thanks to Almighty God for these and numberless other blessings showered upon us in His great mercy, I, Tod R. Caldwell, Governor of North Carolina, in obedience to law and in conformity with an honored precedent, do appoint and set apart

Thursday, November 27th, 1873,

as a day of public Thanksgiving throughout the State; and I do earnestly invite the clergy of every denomination to open their respective houses of worship on said day, and to exhort their congregations to humble themselves before the throne of the ever living God, and render unto Him praises which are justly due, invoking for themselves, their State and their whole country, His guidance, and protection throughout all time to come.

"O come, let us sing unto the Lord, let us make a joyful noise to the Rock of our salvation."

"Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms."

Done at the city of Raleigh, on this the 22d day of October, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and in the ninety-eighth year of American Independence.

OTTO SCHUTZE,
Observer, U. S. A.

—Col. Nat. McLean, of Lumberton, is in this city.

—An excursion party of delegates to the Synod left this morning on steamer Spree for the fortifications at the mouth of the river.

—A RUNAWAY horse attached to a dray caused some little commotion on Market street this morning. Dray demolished and no other damage.

—NECESSITY is stronger than love. One of our editors forbore to read a letter from his idol until he went on a collecting tour this morning.

—WE are requested to state that the Young Ladies' Social Circle will meet at the residence of Mrs. Jane Sweat to-morrow evening, by order of the President.

—THE LARGEST AND CHAPEST STOCK ever brought to this market is to be found at H. HANSTEIN & Co's
New York House,
15 Market st.
tf

—WE are requested to call attention to an error in the advertisement of the Carolina Central Railway, relative to the price of cross ties. It should read 4th November, instead of 4th December.

—THE children belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School, Front street, contributed $77 yesterday for the relief of sufferers at Memphis. The liberality of these little ones is highly commendable.

—THE PLACE to save twenty-five per cent. is to buy your Clothing, Shoes, Dry Goods, &c., at
S. HANSTEIN & Co's
New York House,
15 Market st.
tf

—COL. WADDELL.—This gentleman, though a naughty politician, is a very fine writer, and all who desire a rich treat, will attend his lecture to-night at the Opera House. The object for which it is delivered, and the curious ideas expressed therein, are worthy of attention and thought, and we most certainly hope to see a full house.—Tickets for sale at both book stores.

—LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Your attention is called to the great bargains of Fall and Winter Goods at —SPRUNG A LEAK.—The Schr. John Balch, Hodgen, from Savannah, loaded with lumber and bound for Salem, Mass., sprunk a leak at sea; Saturday she was towed inside the bar and up the river until about eight miles below the city, when she sunk. Assistance has been sent to her, and she will probably be pumped out and towed up to the city where she will be put on the dry dock for repairs.
S. HANSTEIN & Co's

—MR. S. H. Terry went a fishing this morning. He did not use an ordinary hook, line and bait, as his object was to cast some light on what is a mystery. Calmly, he fished for Willie Carter's pants, and found them. His apparatus grasped the pants, but they being loaded with rocks, parted, and he only got a piece of them. He intends to fish again.

Thus the dread secret is in the course of solution. The placid waters of the river refuse to keep within their bosom the horrors, and when interrogated, make a revelation. Such testimony cannot be refused by nature. She is too much in sympathy with the better qualities of life, to veil in mystery such awful deeds, and whether in the mind of the most depraved of mankind the secrets of such a tragedy can be concealed, is doubtful. In this case, the truth was soon proclaimed, and one of the actors was impelled by some power to a confession.

THE TOWN CRIER.

—Pleasant.

—Gold is 107¾.

—Awful lusty again.

—Delightful moonlights.

—County Commissioners meet to-night.

—Do not forget Col. Waddell's lecture to-night.

—Read the Ladies' Benevolent Association advertisement.

—The almanac says woolens, but the thermometer don't.

—Churches well filled yesterday, and no pulpit was unsupplied.

—Judge Brooks did not arrive this morning to hold the U. S. Court. He is expected to arrive to-night.

—We are to have a special term of Court here, to commence on the fourth Monday in December. The POST has urged this for some time.

—Our city cotemporaries are in a tangle to know who are straight Democrats and who are "Liberals." We are thankful that there is no doubt about the political standing of the POST.

THE CARTER MURDER TRIAL.

The speeches were concluded Saturday evening, and the Judge's charge was delivered about 7 o'clock, when the jury retired. Their verdict was made up at about 11 o'clock, and after some delay, getting the attorneys, who had gone home, it was rendered. The jury found David Martin guilty of murder and Jimmie Anderson not guilty. The Judge then made a few remarks to the jury, of which the following is a brief synopsis.

Judge Russell said: Gentlemen of the Jury, it may not be inappropriate to address a few remarks to you on the subject, which has occupied your attention for several days, and I have this to say: The verdict you have rendered against the boy David Martin is one that was demanded by the evidence in this case, and had you failed to convict him, I should have regarded it as a gross and palpable failure of public justice; and it may be that you are not incorrect in acquitting the other boy. The case was much stronger against the boy David than against the boy Jimmie, and upon the whole, I am not sure but your judgment is one that should be sanctioned by public opinion. I confess that had I been setting as a juror I might have convicted the boy Anderson, but you, acting upon the solemnity of your oath to try the case according to the evidence have acted as you deemed right. On the whole, I am glad to know and see that in a case between blacks and whites, that a jury, composed entirely of black men, has rendered a verdict according to the law. It presents a striking contrast to a verdict rendered in another State, possibly since you were impanneled in this case, involving important questions and of great local interest. You have no reason to be ashamed of your verdict. It is one by no means discreditable to our law and our judicial system. Here, twelve negroes, a part of whom in all probability cannot read or write, have rendered a verdict, such as the highest degree of intelligence demanded. There, a jury composed of a different race, entirely white men and in all probability educated men, have rendered a verdict which according to the same laws, is in direct violation of the laws and the facts. So much for the difference between New York justice and North Carolina justice. This is a matter which might attract the attention of political thinkers and philosophers—an axiom which might be acted upon in the future—that, honest ignorance is to be tolerated and preferred rather than intelligent vice. So that after all, we should not be ashamed when told that ignorant men are entitled to sit as jurors in North Carolina. So long as men are honest and upright, the country has nothing to fear.

I am not thanking you, gentlemen of the jury. You have simply done your duty, and no man deserves special thanks for simply performing a duty, and I have no doubt but a jury composed entirely of white men would have convicted a white boy under similar circumstances of murdering a colored boy."

The rule for a new trial was discharged, motion in arrest of judgment overruled and an appeal asked by Mr. Frayser. The boy David was sentenced to be hanged on the 28th of November.

Mr. E. B. Sanders, in the absence of Mr. Mabson, moved the discharge of Jimmie Anderson, which was ordered, and the Court adjourned for the term.

—DEAD CHILD.—Coroner Hewlett has again been called upon to hold an inquest in this city, over the body of a child said to have been killed by brutal treatment. We withhold names as it is not our will or intention of doing any one an injustice.

Saturday Night Sketches.

The moon is so bright and the skies are so clear to-night, that we feel impelled to wander under the delightful rays, beneath the broad branches of the oaks, and catch the sudden gleam of moonlight among the leaves, forgetting the duty of the hour and its care as well. But it is not to be. The interest to-night centers in another scene, amid gas glare and impure atmosphere, with care, anxiety and weary waiting depicted on many a face. Twelve men are to pass upon the life or death of two ignorant negro boys who have committed one of the most horrible murders ever perpetrated in any community. No one appears less concerned than they, as they wile away the time playing with a string. To an outsider, they would appear as two little loafers, who had been fortunate enough to get a seat and then not comprehending the proceedings had gone to playing among themselves rather than go home.

Slowly the hours drag on, the crowd patiently waiting, talking in subdued tones and gazing upon the two unconcerned boys who are the centre of attraction. The Judge has retired to an ante-room, some of the officials who have been kept from their supper, light pipes to draw some consolation from the fragrant weed, the crowd waits, while the air grows thicker and the flickering gas jets cast an uncertain light over the scene. Naught is heard save a confused murmur of voices in the jury room, who, isolated as they are, alone know the progress of their labor. The janitor, who has been on duty from early morn until late at night during the two weeks of Court, has gone to sleep upon a window sill, and many idlers have disposed themselves about the Court room in recumbent atitudes, all patiently waiting. Beside the smaller of the prisoners, Jimmie, seated upon a low stool, so close that she can touch his hand, sits his anxious mother. All day long she has been upon that stool, silent in her great grief, firmly believing in the innocence of her boy; and now bent over, her hands clasped about her knees she sits motionless and silent, awaiting and yet dreading the verdict.

A sudden knock at the jury room door starts the assemblage and an officer turns the key to receive the message. It is but three words, but oh what joy or sorrow it is to carry to many hearts there present! "We have agreed." The door is closed and officials hasten for the absent attorneys. The jury is called into the box, the Judge takes his seat, the involuntary bustle of preparation has ceased, and almost breathless silence ensues. How the moments must have agonized themselves into hours in that mothers heart, as she gazed with all the earnestness of her soul upon those twelve immovable faces. Slowly the Clerk calls over the names and then the question "Gentlemen of the Jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?" The spectators hold their breath as the solemn words "we have," come from the foreman. The boy David, cool and unimpassive as ever, is ordered to arise, and the Clerk asks the terrible question, "How say you, is the prisoner at the bar, David Martin, guilty of the felony and murder of which he is charged, or not guilty?" Mournful as a funeral knell comes the awful answer, Guilty!" Ordering the boy Jimmie to arise, the Clerk again asks the question, and the answer comes more hastily and clearly from the foreman, "Not Guilty!" The mother clasps her hands in thankfulness waiting for the moment when she can clasp her boy to her bosom, free to take him with her, while the usual formalities are gone through, and as he comes from the felons cell and throws his arms about her neck, her faint "thank God" is wafted above, and out of the hearing of the attendant throng, to the Almighty Father, who hears the prayers of the humblest in the land.

And the boy David is alone! Men gaze at him with pity, though none would set him free. The principal actor in the tragedy, the murderer, who sought to involve his youthful companions in his ruin, has seen one by one go free, until now even the boy who undoubtedly followed him and was present at the murder, goes free and he is left alone! The terrible sentence is pronounced "to be hanged by the neck until he is dead, between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock on Friday, the 28th day of November, 1873," and the mother clasps her boy again to her bosom and hastens away with a full heart to her home, and David, the last of the four, is led, securely fastened and guarded, to his cell. The Judge, retires, the crowd disperse, and as the last solemn toll from midnight comes waving through the air, the iron doors close upon David Martin, condemned to suffer death for having murdered his friend and playmate! The lights are out, the halls of justice are silent, and another Saturday night has gone.

ANOTHER MURDER.

A FEARFUL RECITAL.

WE are called upon to chronicle one of the most atrocious and barbarous acts that has ever been committed in this section of the country. We all shuddered at the Carter murder, and well we might, and now we have evidence of a child having its entrails laid open by severe blows of sticks, etc., in the hands of those who should be its protectors, the very thought of which will make one's blood run cold. The particulars, as near as we could gather them, are these: On Thursday evening last, Amos Gregory and wife Mahala, residing near Burgaw, thought it necessary to chastise a boy nine years old who had been bound to them, for playing with other children. The boy was stripped and tied up to a tree, with his hands drawn above his head. Mahala whipped the child as long as she had strength to ply the lash, and when she became too much exhausted to continue her brutal treatment, her husband continued the slow torture until the child was apparently dead. Witnesses describe his cries for mercy to have been such as would have melted a heart of stone, and yet the barbarians in whose charge he was turned a deaf ear to them. The colored people in the neighborhood where the murder was committed, did all in their power to ferret out the matter, and gave a great deal of valuable information to the officers of the law, without which they could have done nothing.

Coroner Hewlett held an inquest over the body on Sunday, and returned a verdict in accordance with the facts. A post mortem examination was made by Dr. R. T. Sanders, who stated that the entrails of the child were very much bruised and bloodshotten.

The murderers were brought to this city by Deputy Sheriff W. L. Rivenbark and lodged in jail.

Since writing the above, we have been fortunate enough to get the evidence in full before the Coroner's Jury, which we publish below:

Sarah Hethcock testifies: As I came up I heard the licks. I stopped when over the fence. Isaac Floyd was tied to the tree—the boy now before us dead—the cedar tree in front of the door. Amos Gregory was whipping him; don't think the sun was over fifteen minutes high. It was last Thursday evening. Amos said he would whip him till he obeyed him, if he died in five minutes afterwards. At the time he was whipping the child, the child was stark naked. I heard him give him twenty-five or thirty licks. I saw some of them put on. He had four or five switches by him at the time. All were frazed, and looked as if they had been used. I stopped about fifty minutes. During the time I stayed he stopped whipping the child. I then went home, it being about sunset when I left. I returned between six and seven o'clock; I found the child lying dead in the floor. I proposed to strip the child. Mahala Gregory, the wife of Amos Gregory, objected to having the clothes pulled off, as she said the clothes would be of no service to any one else. If they wanted to shroud him to do it with the clothes on, and the child was not stripped at all. I saw no one whipping the child but Amos Gregory. I suppose the child to be eight or nine years old.

Misssouri Highsmith testified: I came to Aunt Mahala Gregory's house after fire. Aunt Mahala told the child to pull of its clothes. He went to pulling them off, when she slapped him and told him he wasn't getting them very off very fast. He told her, yes, ma'am, he was, and he pulled them off, and she tied him. Aunt Mahala went to whipping him, then Uncle Amos Gregory came up and pulled off his coat and jacket, and told Aunt Mahala to give him hold of the switch; and he took it and went to whipping Isaac, who is now dead. It was last Thursday evening. I did not stay long. Uncle Amos was whipping him when I left. Uncle Amos seemed to be very angry. He had two switches together whipping him. I then went home. I then came back into the woods to get a turn of wood. I saw the little boy Isaac, that is now dead, tied to the tree. Uncle Amos was gone after another switch. He came back with a switch, and went to whipping him again. He whipped him a little while, and turned him loose. I don't know what time in the evening that was. I then went back home with my turn of wood. I came back that night, and he was lying on his pallet, halloing, Oh Lord! oh Lord! and when Aunt Mahala would start to him, he would say, go away, go away, grandma, I can't. I did not stay long; he was alive when I left. I came back next morning, and Isaac was dead.

Dr. Robert T. Sanders testified: I find the general condition of the body anemic and terribly flagellated, with perhaps a switch. I made fifteen incisions in external bruises, and thirteen of them exhibited bloodshotted and bruised conditions, from one-eighth to three-quarters of an inch deep, and one-half to three inches long; two bruises on the skull, only one recent and not deep; the lungs engorged with blood; the liver greatly engorged; the stomach near its lower end bruised and engorged with blood and from external bruises, evidently from a blow or blows, filled with gas; the general appearance of the bowels bruised and bloodshotten. The middle finger of the right hand was dislocated at the third joint, evidently by a blow. The back of the hand was greatly bruised and bloodshotten. And from the general bruised and lacerated condition of the body, his death must have been caused by blows with some instrument sufficient to cause death.

HOW THE NEWS OF THE GRANT PARISH OUTRAGES WAS RECEIVED AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Noon.—The accounts from Grant Parish, Louisiana, attribute the outrages partly to the negroes and partly to the Metropolitan police force. This news creates profound feeling in official circles, but the details are not fully believed.

A POOL FORMING TO AID CLAFLIN & CO.

THE BEER MANUFACTURERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—NOON.—At a mass meeting of masons of this vicinity resolutions were passed protesting against the reduction of wages. Three hundred skilled English workmen have gone home.

Phillip Howard ordered two gunners from his premises. The gunners became indignant and shot Howard, killing him instantly. No arrests have yet been made.

Five hundred male and female operatives have been ousted in Patterson, New Jersey.

The Eastern Division of the Erie Railroad has discharged two hundred and fifty hands, and has also reduced wages. It is reported that the President is making arrangements to import several English engineers at lower wages.

The Herald says that it is stated that a pool has been formed among the capitalists to aid Claflin & Co., if necessary. Five million dollars have been raised for this purpose.

Owing to the inferior quality of lager beer manufactured in the breweries of New York and vicinity, the retail dealers have been shipping large quantities from the Western cities for their use, and the brewers feeling the heavy decrease in their trade, on Saturday assembled in convention to see what steps could be taken to retain the custom. They were assured that they could do so if they would manufacture a better article, which they agreed to do but will be compelled to advance the price from $9 to $10, maintaining that a good article cannot be manufactured for less. The advanced price takes effect this week.

REDUCTION OF WAGES ON EAST TENNESSEE, VIRGINIA AND GEORGIA RAILROAD.

THE EMPLOYES ALL STRIKE.

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 3—Noon.—On account of a general reduction of wages of the employes of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company the engineers, firemen, machinists and blacksmiths quit work. Some delay in the trains has resulted therefrom, but the Company has succeeded in supplying the places of the engineers so as not to interfere with the passenger service. The Company orders 20 per cent. reduction of wages. The employes are willing to work on short time, but want no decrease of the per diem. The Company will not recede. There has been no demonstrations made by the employes.
